

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter is the last chapter which dealing with the conclusion of the whole research result and elaborates some suggestions relating to the correlation between academic self concept and English achievement.

5.1 Conclusion

From the research finding and the discussion above, there are some conclusions which can be taken:

1. The calculation of Rank Spearman finds relationship ( $r$ ) value is 0.558 at 5% level. It shows that there is positive and strong correlation between academic self concept and English achievement of the 8th D grade students of MTs. Masyhudiyah Giri. It means that academic self concept and English achievement have contribution and roles for each other to make better academic achievement.
2. There is significant correlation ( $\text{sig.} = 0.001$ ) between academic self concept and English achievement of the 8th D grade students of MTs. Masyhudiyah Giri. It means that the correlation between academic self concept and English achievement is important and real. So, academic self concept can be used as one of predictor factors of English achievement.

5.2 Suggestion

1. Since academic self concept and English achievement are significantly and positively correlated which imply that both of them are important and support each other, conducting an experimental study to find appropriate and the best activities in English language classroom to increase both of students' academic self concept and English achievement will be much better for further study.
2. Since there is strong correlation between academic self concept and English achievement which implies that both of them are close related, so achieving positive and maximum academic self concept is important for getting success in English achievement. Here, the teacher may motivate and propose good learning activities for the students in order to increase their academic self concept and English achievement, besides the parents should always trying to support positive students' wishes.
3. As we know that English has been useful for students' future by remembering that we are facing the modern era right now, here students need to have positive academic self concept, therefore English must be learned early by them.