

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION

So the conclusion is the goals desired by students and also the head of the department of industrial engineering is that students can communicate effectively, especially in speaking skills to support their future work so the researcher chooses an opinion gap activity as an approach in developing this book. The students are still at the initial level or can be called beginners in English but student goals are to achieve advance level, because the book that the researcher developed is only limited to one semester, the researcher is only able to provide English textbook at the intermediate level, so that the gap between students' abilities and desires is not it is too far away and this is also approved by the English lecturer who states that the text used in the good book is not too long and difficult because students are still at the initial level better to multiply the exercise in the text to deepen students' understanding. In the validation activity obtained from students showed very good, namely the students agreed with 26 statements that the researcher provided for validation results it means that the book is feasible to be used for students, while the results of the validation that the researcher did with the expert stated that there were 13 statements from a total of 26 statements that were not approved and this meant books that researchers develop is still not feasible. Therefore the next step is for the researcher to revise according to the direction of the expert and the second validation is done and the result the expert approves all the statements the researcher provides in the validation activity, this means that the book the researcher has developed is in the feasible stage to use.
