This study is developmental study that adopts from Steven J. McGriff's ADDIE Model with flow chart steps of development in Aisyah's thesis. The steps are Need Analysis, Design, development, Expert Validation, Development of Validation, Try Out, Revision of Material, and Final product.

The researcher made a narrative text material with the games in the computer game as a main theme. Computer game and narrative text has a similarity, both of them has a representative story or we call it generic structure in narrative text. The product will consist of; explanation of narrative text, vocabularies, reading texts, writing exercises, explanation past tense and exercises of past tense.

This research showed that the material which was developed proper to be used according to the result of expert validation and student's book readability. The expert validation is done by the three components; content feasibility, presentation feasibility, and language feasibility. The result showed very good, very good and good. For the result of try out material (student's book readability) obtained 100% in interesting category for contain of the book, display of the books, pictures of the books. While the explanation of the book and sentences difficulty obtained a score 100% and 66.67%. from both of those result expert validation and try out of the material, this material book was proper to be used in SMPN 2 Cerme Gresik, because the students can easy to understand narrative text and the generic structure of narrative text, the students also feel motivated to learn this material book because this book use the theme which they like.

This research only focus on developing material in term of book, so the researcher hope for the next researcher can develop this material in term of auto-run CD and make an integrated material which consists of four skills (writing, reading, speaking, and listening).
